New web site creation

Local businesses and community-oriented organizations like churches, charities, and special interest clubs have special needs and considerations when developing a website. And often tight budget constraints are at the top of the list. But that doesn't mean they have to sacrifice quality for affordability.

Spree Web Design has worked with a broad range of businesses and community groups to help them develop and maintain websites that are professional and affordable, giving them the quality internet presence they need without breaking the bank.

We will guide you step by step through the entire process with everything from choosing a domain name and host to organizing content, developing a fresh, easy-to-use layout and registering the site with the search engines once it is completed.

Website Makeovers

Many businesses and community groups have already recognized the need for a professionally designed website. But often the demands of maintaining and updating that site take a backseat to the more immediate needs of running the business itself.

When a website has gone stale, Spree Web Design can work with you to give your existing site a whole new look, improving its value to you, increasing usability and functionality for the site's visitors and boosting its position in the search engines.

Perhaps your group or organization already has a website that someone did 'just for fun' and now you're ready to take the site to the next level. Spree Web Design can assist you with this, using our expertise and knowledge gained through hands on experience, we can help you to achieve your goals - whether they be business or personal.
